

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to express my sincere appreciation to Assistant Professor Dr. Naruemon Yutakom, Professor Dr. Vantipa Roadrangka, Assistant Professor Dr. Gunjana Theeragool, Associate Professor Dr. Miles Barker, Dr. Alison Campbell, and Dr. Bronwen Cowie for their assistance, support, and valuable guidance for the entire of my study.

I am also particularly grateful to my friends in the Faculty of Science, Faculty of Agro-industry, the College of Environment, Faculty of Engineering, and Faculty of Education at Kasetsart University and at the University of Waikato, Chiang Mai University and Phramongkutklao College of Medicine for their concern and always support my enforcement.

I would also like to thank the teachers who were participants in this study and the students who joined in the implementations and gave helpful feedback and their active involvement.

This study is dedicated to my beloved parents, who have spent their entire lives supporting my inspiration and always cheer me up.

For all the help from all people I mentioned and who I did not mention their names, your kindness and support will always be unique memories in my mind.

Finally, I would like to thank the Institute for the Promotion of Teaching Science and Technology (IPST) and Graduate School of Kasetsart University for supporting scholarship and providing the opportunity for me to fulfill my knowledge and pursue a doctoral degree at Kasetsart University.

Thasaneeya Ratanaroutai

April 2006